ince 1994, Barry Nadell has been an industry expert on the legal issues relating to employment background screening and best practices of the employment screening industry. Now Barry is using his expertise to provide expert witness services and consulting on matters relating to background screening practices and policies.

- Barry was the founder and owner of InfoLink Screening Services, Inc., a national background screening firm, which performed hundreds of thousands of background searches between 1994 and 2006.
- In March 2006, Barry sold InfoLink Screening Services to Kroll, one of the world's largest background screening firms, and acted as senior vice president of the Background Screening division of Kroll until December 2007.
- Barry was a founding member of the National Association of Professional Background Screeners (NAPBS), serving as its co-chairman in 2006 and on the board of directors from 2004 to 2008.
- Barry has written several articles, been interviewed on television and radio, has spoken at several national human resources and security industry conventions, including SHRM and ASIS.
- He also authored Sleuthing 101, Background Checks and The Law, a book widely read throughout the industry as it is solely dedicated to the legal issues of background screening.

Barry has provided comprehensive expert witness reports and testimony on behalf of both plaintiffs and defendants, representing background screening companies, employers and individuals. Barry no longer owns or works for a background screening company, so he has no bias or conflicts of interest. He has experience testifying in depositions with legal counsel and in Federal Court in front of a jury. And, drawing on his many years of public speaking, his testimony and conclusions are clear and compelling. He gets results!
